Arigo appoints Bill Ren as Vice President of Engineering

N. Billerica, MA – January 7, 2010 – Arigo, the leading provider of Global Sourcing and Trade Management solutions for private label retailers, brand owners, and wholesalers, appoints Bill Ren as Vice President of Engineering. In his role, Bill will be responsible for Arigo's technology, development, and delivery. With over 15 years of experience in enterprise software, Bill brings a wide range of expertise to Arigo with proficiency in product development and engineering execution.

Bill's early commitment to delivering cutting edge technology established the foundation for his various successes. Prior to joining Arigo, Bill led engineering and product development at ClearPoint Metrics, a market leader in enterprise security performance management. As the co-founder of venture-backed software startup, mValent (acquired by Oracle), Bill drove the company's technical direction and built its software for managing and monitoring application infrastructures. Bill has extensive experience in leading geographically distributed development organizations in the United States, India, and China. He is also the author of multiple U.S. software patents.

"Bill brings years of experience and success in growing strong technology foundations for emerging companies," said Donny Askin, CEO of Arigo. "In addition, Bill's global development experience affords Arigo new opportunities to dramatically expand our development platform. We are fortunate to have him as a member of our senior management team."

Bill joins Arigo's senior management team at an opportune time, as it further expands Arigo's award-winning Global Sourcing and Trade Management software solutions. As Arigo continues to deliver visibility and accountability throughout the supply chain, Bill's extensive experience in driving product innovation paired with Arigo's time-tested, best practice solutions, positions the Company for significant growth in 2010.
